Work Experience Description

Throughout my work experience, I had the opportunity to develop and improve my coding skills with challenging tasks. I worked on many coding projects from start to finish that featured complex user interfaces and efficient back-end databases. I was also involved in testing and debugging tasks.

Major Description

In Ilmu Pemerintahan, I had to study a wide range of courses including public administration, public policy, political science, public relations, and economics. These classes helped me acquire the knowledge and skills I need to understand how political systems work and the implications for societies, organizations, and individuals.
